

PICNIC TABLE

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0055] A picnic table includes a pair of benches and a central table is generally disposed between the benches. The picnic table may include first and second legs that are used to support the benches and the central table above a support surface such as a floor or the ground. The first and second legs preferably each include a loop portion that supports the benches and a table support portion that supports the central table. Desirably, the loop portion and the table support portion of each leg are generally aligned in the same plane.
